

ADELPHIC WINS ANNUAL LITERARY SOCIETY CONTEST

Adelphic Literary Society Carries Off Honors at Annual High School Contest Held Tuesday Evening at Local School.

The Adelphic Literary Society of the Maysville High School, won the annual literary contest Tuesday evening over the Athenaeum society but by only a small margin. The three judges Miss Louise Best, Senator E. L. Worthington and Mr. Clarence Matthews were almost unanimous in their grading of the various numbers on the program and graded all numbers very closely.

In the oratorical contest all three judges were unanimous in giving Robert Power, the Athenaeum representative a higher grade than his opponent, Albert Knox, the Adelphic representative, but in all other events the Adelphic representatives won a higher grade and the contest therefore went to the Adelphic society.

In the paper contest Nan Chenault and Harriett Glasgow represented the rival societies. Both young ladies presented a highly interesting paper in unique manner and received hearty applause from the large audience.

In the debate Roger Caplinger and William Rice contested with Mildred Proctor and Church Matthews while in the declamatory contest Betty Barbour contested with Joe Vadsworth. The declamatory was in many respects the most attractive part of the program, both giving splendid renditions in a most forceful manner.

Members of both societies rooted hard for their representatives and there was quite a clatter and din in the auditorium, the students displayed so much society loyalty. They are to be congratulated however, upon giving strict attention during the presentation of the program.

The decision in favor of Adelphic society ties the score during the life of both societies—twelve years. Both societies have now won six contests each.

A. T. HERT DIES SUDDENLY TUESDAY AT WASHINGTON

Republican National Committeeman From Kentucky Suddenly Stricken in Washington Hotel.

A. T. Hert

Washington, June 8. — A. T. Hert, Kentucky Republican National Committeeman, who died at the New Willard Hotel here at 4:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, became ill Monday night. A physician was summoned early Tuesday morning. Finding that Mr. Hert had a high blood pressure, he advised him to rest.

Immediately prior to his death, which resulted from apoplexy, he had been resting in bed in a half-sitting posture deep in discussion of political appointments with Congressman John W. Langlois, Tenth Kentucky District, and J. Matt Cohen, Jefferson county attorney.

Congressman J. M. Rohsion, Eleventh Kentucky District, was announced. Mr. Hert requested that he be shown in.

Turning to Mr. Chilton, Mr. Hert began to chide him about a minor political appointment in which he and Mr. Rohsion were interested. But his laugh turned to a cry of pain, and he fell back upon the bed. Two minutes later he was dead.

Hurried efforts were being made to obtain a physician when Dr. R. Lyman Soxton, who had treated Mr. Hert Tuesday morning happened in. He pronounced Mr. Hert dead. Even had the physician been on hand at the beginning of the attack, Mr. Hert's death could not have been prevented, he said.

"Mr. Hert told me today that he had not felt well last night," Mr. Langley said. "He said he was restless all through the night, but that he did not summon a physician until this morning. The physician found he had a high blood pressure. He advised him to rest today."

Louisville, Ky., June 8. — Mr. Hert had been outstandingly successful both in business and in politics. He was president of the American Canning Company and of a number of other allied canning companies. He was president of the Southern Motors Company, and a director in the American Surety Company, New York, and in the National Bank of Kentucky. He also had other minor business connections.

Politically, he was by far the most prominent Republican leader in Kentucky. He had figured for several years in national affairs of his party. He was western campaign manager for Charles Evans Hughes in the 1916 Presidential race, and in the national campaign last autumn he was one of the chief advisors of Will H. Hays, who managed Mr. Harding's campaign.

Alvin Tobias Hert, the son of William and Isabel Hert, was born April 8, 1865, at Owensburg, a little town in Southern Indiana. His parents, both of good stock, had moved to Owensburg from Crab Orchard, Ky. His father was a merchant, keeping a little store of a typically rural sort. The parents were church members and God-fearing.

The body, according to a dispatch, left Washington on a special car of a Baltimore & Ohio train at 12:25 o'clock last night. The train will arrive in Louisville at 9:15 o'clock tonight.

On the funeral train will be United States Senator Richard P. Ernst, Mr. and Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Christine Bradley Smith, of Frankfort, Mr. Chilton, and, according to a long distance message from Will H. Hays, chairman, a special committee from the Republican National Committee.

RECORD CROWD OF GROWERS TO HEAR MARKET EXPERT

Mason County Tobacco Committee Will Boost Sapro Meeting on June Sixteenth.

Judge Robert W. Bingham, head of the organization committee of the proposed Co-operative Tobacco Marketing Association, spoke to the members of the Mason County Tobacco committee at the Farm Bureau building this afternoon explaining the system and answering many questions put to him by the various committeemen.

Judge Bingham urged the members of the committee to have all the tobacco growers in Mason county hear Mr. Aaron Sapro, of California, the author of the proposed marketing plan when he speaks here on Thursday, June 16. Judge Bingham said that Mr. Sapro was undoubtedly the greatest expert on co-operative marketing in the world today and said no grower could afford to miss hearing his presentation of the plan.

This committee will arrange for the Sapro meeting which will probably be held in the Washington Opera House. One announcement of the plans will be made.

ATLANTIC LINER CALLS FOR HELP; STRUCK ICEBERG

"S. O. S." Call Sent Out By Steamer Off the Coast of Newfoundland Wednesday Morning.

New York, June 8. — The British steamer Seapool, en route from Montreal to Dublin, was believed today to have struck an iceberg, according to the naval radio here.

"We have struck an iceberg. Somebody please stand by!"

This message, navy yard officials said, was picked up along the entire coast, but the name and location of the steamer were not given.

One radio message intercepted at Ottercliffes, Me., read:

"We have struck an iceberg. Position 48.30 W. Longitude. Somebody please stand by. Believe we are sinking."

The location given would be about 200 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

Messages have been sent out in an effort to locate the vessel.

All vessels known to be in the iceberg region have been ordered by wireless to be on the lookout for the vessel, navy yard officials announced. The Seapool is a 2799-ton steamship. It left Montreal June 2.

The steamer is owned by the Pool Shipping Co. of England and is operated by Sir R. Roper & Co.

The naval radio's information regarding the Seapool was indefinite, her partial identification being based largely on her location.

Bankers Endorse the Plan of Co-operative Tobacco Sales

Meeting of Bankers in Sixth and Ninth Congressional Districts Held Today at Beechwood Park.

The annual meeting of Groups Six and Nine of the Kentucky Bankers' Association is being held Wednesday at Beechwood Park. Probably three hundred bankers and bank employees are in attendance and the Pavilion at the park in which the meeting is being held is taxed to its capacity.

The meeting was opened this morning by Mr. L. N. Davis, of Ashtland, President of Group Nine, and after an invocation by Dr. John Barbour, Hon. James N. Kehoe, of the Bank of Maysville, welcomed the visitors and Hon. Aubrey Barbour, of Newport responded.

The chief address of the morning was made by Judge Robert W. Bingham, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, who explained in detail the Sapro plan of co-operative marketing of tobacco. Judge Bingham explained that the system suggested was identical with the system which is proving so successful with the California fruit growers. He spoke most interestingly explaining the plan thoroughly to the bankers and especially the financial side of the question. At the conclusion of Judge Bingham's address Dr. J. M. Strother, of Grayson, President of the Commercial Bank of Grayson, offered the following resolution which was seconded by Hon. James N. Kehoe and after considerable discussion, adopted without a negative vote:

"Resolved, that Groups Six and Nine of the Kentucky Bankers' Association, in meeting assembled at Maysville, Ky., June 8, 1921, express its opinion that the plan for the future co-operative marketing of tobacco, as explained at this meeting by Judge Robert W. Bingham, is a fair and reasonable plan of handling the tobacco crop and should prove profitable and satisfactory to all concerned, and we cheerfully pledge to aid undertaking our full and hearty co-operation." Following the adoption of this resolution, the meeting adjourned for lunch which was served in the car barn by the ladies of the local bankers. During the dinner the Maysville Boys' Band played a concert which brought scores of compliments from the visiting bankers.

The afternoon session was in charge of Group Six, Mr. C. W. Simrall, of Covington, President of that group, being in charge.

The chief address of the afternoon was on "Foreign Trade Financing Corporation," by Earl S. Gwin, Vice President of the National Bank of Kentucky at Louisville. During the afternoon there was a general discussion of the two general topics, "Why Not a Just Legal Rate of Interest for Kentucky?" and "Liability of Married Women."

JUDGE BINGHAM GREATLY AFFECTED BY FRIEND'S DEATH.

Judge Robert W. Bingham, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who spoke before the bankers' association Wednesday morning was greatly affected by the sudden death of Hon. A. T. Hert in Washington late Tuesday. Although of different political faiths, Judge Bingham and Mr. Hert were very close personal friends for years.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

The Constitution of the United States guarantees not only free speech but a free press. One, indeed, cannot exist without the other. If one is impaired or suppressed the other will suffer or die with it. These inalienable rights have been the very foundation on which our free institutions have been built, and without them America would exist only in name.

This question of freedom of the press has been brought to the attention of the people within the last few days, by a ruling of Postmaster General Hays, who has passed favorably upon the application of The Liberator for admission to the second-class privilege.

The Liberator filed its application February 11, 1918, three and a half years ago, when the magazine was established. The former administration never acted in the matter, Mr. Burleson evidently holding the opinion that The Liberator savored too much of socialism—or worse. The New York Call and other papers of like character had been barred from the mails month after month and year after year, because some of the issues had displeased Mr. Burleson, and he resolved that the people under his guardianship should not be tainted with false and injurious doctrines if he could help it. The law gave him the power—a very unwise provision—to bar from the mails any issue of any publication which in his judgment transgressed the rules under which the department operated. But he usurped the power to bar all issues of the publication thereafter on general principles.

So The Liberator was denied, or rather ignored, which amounted to the same thing. However, strange as it may seem, every issue of the publication since the day of its founding was accepted for mailing month by month at the third-class rate of postage pending action on the application for second-class entry.

Mr. Hays says that the Classification Act is specific and plain, and that matter is entitled to the second-class mailing privilege "if it is originated and published for the dissemination of public information, or devoted to literature, the sciences, arts or some special industry." He denies that there is any question to be raised as to whether the information so disseminated is of a public benefit. "Much of the news in any daily might be barred if public benefit were essential. . . . The arbitrary power to decide what is and what is not a public benefit was never intended to be lodged in the Postmaster General. It shall not be assumed."

Mr. Hays then goes on to make the following important observation, which carries refreshment and encouragement with it after the long years of Burlesonism:

"The Postoffice Department hold no brief for The Liberator or any other publication. If there is on foot a conspiracy to destroy our established form of government by force and violence, claimed by the department heretofore as a reason for not granting this permit, and if this publication is involved in it, then the Department of Justice will deal promptly and effectively with the conspirators in the manner prescribed by law. The Department of Justice is now organized can be depended upon absolutely to do that."

"The war is over. We must return to the ordered freedom. Our method of safeguarding the public welfare, while at the same time maintaining freedom of the press, has been found through a long period of stable civil liberty better for the public welfare and personal security of citizens than to establish a bureaucratic censorship which in its nature becomes a matter of individual opinion, prejudice or caprice. There is a certain cost in free institutions in which the institution of freedom of the press shares, but we in this country have preferred to pay such costs from time to time rather than to seek protection through the historically discredited devices of bureaucratic governments."

Mr. Hays strikes the true note when he says that we have always been willing to pay whatever costs may accrue from our policy of a free press and unlimited public discussion, rather than to "seek the protection of the historically discredited devices of bureaucratic governments."

The American people are not feeble-minded. They are not immature, or undisciplined, needing a guardian and censor. Our freedom is secure because we won it and have ever since kept it in our hands. We believe that fresh air is the best cure for vagaries and heresies, ecclesiastical and political, social and economic. Discussion is the true touchstone of democracy. Let us have no more "bureaucratic government."

IS THERE CONSPIRACY AGAINST FATHER?

There is increasing discussion and alarm these days over the increase of undisciplined and wayward children, especially around the age of 14 to 16 or 17. In every city, the cases in court against children are increasing until children's courts are becoming as important and conspicuous as the police courts.

All over the country the papers are carrying stories of daring holdups, daring burglaries, desperate daylight bank robberies and the authorities say that the criminals are mostly young men who were only boys a year or two ago.

Mernard J. Fagan, chief probation officer city of New York, has probably had to deal with more bad boys and girls than any other man in America. He says that the whole trouble is in the home and he blames mother because she insists on having the whole say about the children and resents dad's interference. In fact, Fagan charges that there is a conspiracy in the great American home against father. His deduction is that if father watched the children more—if mother and father CO-OPERATED in the bringing up of the children—there would be fewer wayward young men and women in America today.

It is a great problem. But we do not join with Fagan in his finding against mother. Of course she is the one who has to take almost exclusive care of the youngsters during the tender years, and the thing becomes habit with her.

It is for father to diplomatically butt in at the right time. If he doesn't he cannot escape the blame later on.

American will return to the aid of the Allies should an unforeseen war be brought about by the evident bad faith of Germany.—Prince of Monaco.

NATIONAL FOREST SERVICE DEMANDS UPON FOREST PROTECTION

Forest Fires Destroy Billions of Feet of Timber During Each Year, Says Official Report.

Forest fires in the United States annually destroy more than two billion feet of timber, or material enough to build a five-room frame house every 100 feet on both sides of a road extending from New York to Chicago, according to the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. With four people to a house these 100,000 or more buildings would provide a home for nearly one-fourth of our yearly increase in population—a number sufficient to populate a new city each year the size of Cincinnati, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Mo., or Seattle.

More than 160,000 forest fires have occurred in the United States during the past five years, eighty per cent. of which were due to human agencies and therefore preventable. The conflagrations burned over 56,483,000 acres—an area greater than that included within the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania—and destroyed $85,500,000 worth of timber and property. If this needless waste were stopped and the material thus saved put into the Forest Service, has proclaimed houses, the various business interests concerned in building construction, such as lumber dealers, carpenters, masons, and supply houses, would, it is estimated, benefit to the extent of more than $400,000,000 annually. Bankers and real estate dealers would also profit through the sale of lands and by loans on homes to the extent of an additional $30,000,000. Forest fires are therefore of vital concern to not only the everyday citizens but to every business man and laborer.

Forest protection goes hand in hand with national prosperity. Next to food and clothing, wood is the most indispensable product of nature. Without wood there can be no agriculture, no manufacture, no commerce. Forest fires are therefore of vital concern to not only the everyday citizens but to every business man and laborer.

Forest protection goes hand in hand with national prosperity. Next to food and clothing, wood is the most indispensable product of nature. Without wood there can be no agriculture, no manufacture, no commerce. Forest fires destroy life and property, impoverish the soil, drive away animal life, cause floods and drought, and make waste the playgrounds of the people. President Harding, at the request of and the material thus saved put into the Forest Service, has proclaimed this week as Forest Protection Week in order that the present unnecessary waste of the timber resources of the country and the serious condition of our forests may be brought widely to public notice and its local observance is taking place in all parts of the country.

New York Letter

Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — One is willing to admit just oneself to almost any condition that makes it possible to keep a carpenter at work at times when he is really needed. But it is difficult sometimes to devote one's afternoon to music! A woman who was having a partition removed from her home in Park avenue had to meet this problem the other day. An Italian carpenter was at work in her music room and the environment appealed to him. "Lady," he requested, "please play while I work." She complied with his petition and after her performance, his talk drifted to music and the opera. "Lady," he said, brightly, "next week I come and bring my violin."

Among the "vehicles" confiscated recently by the police as liquor carriers were one baby carriage, one brief case, one stove, one pushcart, three boilers, eleven suitcases, two bicycles, one motorboat, one cash register and a bathtub.

Jazz is going out. Actually! And going fast. At the recent dinner dances in New York, what has been heard? Some jazz, of course, but dominating that, the grand old-time waltzes they were danced, too. Cigarettes are beginning to note the return in sentiment to those more rhythmic days, and "stage waltzes" are beginning to creep in among the contortionist effects we have had for the past two or three seasons. And my eyes! But it is a relief.

People have a lot of different reasons for liking the movies. Some are quite unexpected ones. But after all, one great outstanding thing to most of us, I fancy, is the presentation of actual environment and scenic reality which the speaking stage cannot touch. Real trees blowing in the wind, and the real waterfalls and shipwrecks and mountain peaks, you know and apple blossoms! I was thinking about that the other night as "Snow-blind." I actually FELT the cold from the blizzard and the snow-covered hills and valleys. What would have been the effect of the production as a "regular" play rather than one in the films? It's a good story; more than that, it's an unusual story, and the characters are much more than just interesting and well done. It would have been impressive in any form. But I developed a really grateful, humble sort of appreciation for the motion pictures as I sat there and realized that I was seeing the drama as it might actually have been lived right there in its own glittering, snow-ruled country; and that we never could do that if it weren't for the picture. Pauline Stark does extremely well as the girl who is stricken with snowblindness, and Russell Simpson is powerful as the fugitive who wins her love through portraying himself as the man he might have been. The disillusionment when the girl recovers her sight and his realization of his own injustice form the basis of a strong well-told tale, which Goldwyn has produced with art.

This city changes so rapidly that it is difficult to keep ordinary engagements in it. I asked an out-of-town friend to have lunch with me the other day—some one I wanted to be particularly nice to. And I gave careful directions to meet me at a little restaurant on Fulton street, for which I always had a particular affection and knew she would like. I had been there just the week before and the food was delicious. For the first time in months I was late to an appointment and I rushed as fast as I could—to discover my poor bewildered guest standing helpless in the middle of the sidewalk looking in all directions, while nothing but one little corner of a wall remained of my restaurant, and scaffolds already hung over the walk in preparation for a new and bigger structure there.

More than one thousand dock passes were given out to the friends and admirers of Enrico Caruso, who clamored to bid him farewell when he sailed for Europe last week.

Robert Cerveny, 33 years old, is probably the mildest prisoner who ever fooled his pursuers. He escaped the other day from the model penitentiary at East View, and the police scoured the surrounding hills and all those within several miles. Every out-of-the-way crevice was investigated. Then they decided to find out if any clue could be obtained at his home here in the city. Any clue? Why, certainly. There was Robert, himself, safe in bed and sweetly sleeping. "Where'd they think I'd go?" he asked with surprise, when informed of the tiresome search they had been put to.

VETERAN DEPUTY RESIGNS.
Covington, Ky. — Warren Elliston, South Covington, for more than 30 years a deputy in the Internal Revenue Collector's office, has tendered his resignation to Revenue Agent John C. Demoss, to be effective immediately, and has taken a position with a Lantonia bank.

Louisville, Ky. — Miss Virginia Hutchison, 30, leaped into the Ohio River at the foot of Eighteenth street Thursday afternoon, but she grasped the end of a rope after floundering in the water, and was rescued by policeman and fireman. She had been in ill health.

THE IMPETUS TO BUREAUCRACY.

Washington, D. C. — That bureaucracy has its impetus in the Executive Departments rather than in Congress, is the assertion of the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr. The Association says:

"The humorist on the staff of the New York Evening Post tells of a young man who went to a university professor with a request that he be given training that would fit him to become superintendent of a great railway system. The professor inquired how long it would take and how much it would cost. The professor is represented as replying, 'Young man, such a course would cost you $20,000 and require 20 years of your time. But, on the other hand, by spending $300 of your money and three months of your time you may be elected to Congress. Once there you will feel yourself perfectly competent to direct not one but all the great railroad systems of the country.'

"As a piece of humor, the story is not bad. The humorist is worth his salary however liberal it may be. But as a portrayal of the mental attitude of members of Congress, the story is, for far from the truth and will be injurious if many people give it credence. Stories such as this, which give the people an erroneous impression of the representatives at Washington, cannot be fruitful of good—in fact there can never be good results from dissemination of untrue impressions.

"The fact is that Congress has nearly always approached reluctantly and hesitatingly every attempt to impose government control over private business. There was agitation for government supervision of the railroads for years and years before Congress finally enacted the laws which created the Interstate Commerce commission. The legislation was enacted in response to public demand—not through any assumption of superior ability on the part of members of Congress.

"During the Wilson administration, there was much legislation giving the government control over private business, but this did not originate with Congress. The original proposals came from the Executive Departments, or from President Wilson, and Congress acceded to the demand of the bureaucrats for control over private enterprise. It is undoubtedly true that bureaucracy feels itself competent to direct not one but practically all the business of the country. There is scarcely a bureau in any government department but is asking Congress for more power over the lives and activities of the citizens of the Republic. Scarcely ever, if ever, has a bureau suggested that it be relieved of any of its power or that its duties be abolished.

"It was the President, not Congress, that wanted the Railroad Administration established. It was Mr. McAdoo, not Congress, that scrambled the railroads. It was the bureaucrats, not Congress, that increased railroad expenses out of all proportion to the increase in freight handled and out of all proportion to the increase in revenue. The same will be found to be true in almost every instance in which private enterprise has found itself handicapped by governmental hindrances. It is true that Congress enacts the laws which give the bureaucrats their power but this is brought about not through the initiative of Congress, but at the request of the executive or in response to public demand.

"Review of legislative history will show this to be true, and newspapers that give a contrary impression through the mediumship of their humorous paragraphs are in poor business, to say the least."

OLD AGE, HIS MARK.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discourses of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows. We can detect the first traces of disease by signs just as plain.

When a woman suffers from backache, nervous depression, dragging-down pains, and those ailments peculiar to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine. What other medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles.

GOOD ROADS MEET GETS UNDER WAY

All Counties of State Are Represented —Mrs. Charles P. Weaver Makes Response to Mayor's Address.

Louisville, June 8. — All counties of the state were represented at the good roads convention which convened at the armory Tuesday under the auspices of the Kentucky Road Engineers' Association. The delegates mainly are county engineers, judges, magistrates and contractors. The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by President Merritt Drane, engineer of Jefferson county.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor George W. Smith and County Judge William Kreiger. Mrs. Charles P. Weaver, making the response, was the first woman to address a good roads convention in Kentucky.

Governor Edwin P. Morrow was to address the meeting this afternoon.

Appointment of committees, an address by Senator White L. Moss, Pineville, author of the state highway line, and talks on tar products by W. E. Crowell and P. K. Schindler were to complete the day's program.

Tonight and each evening of the four-day session a band concert, dance and motion picture show are to be staged at the armory, free to the public.

A large exhibit of machinery, motor trucks and materials will be shown in connection with the meeting.

Roland Pyne, road engineer of Campbell county, will preside Wednesday. Following an address by Joe F. Bosworth, Middlesboro, the visitors will be entertained at the country home of President Drane. They will then attend a banquet at the Elgin Hotel. The afternoon will be taken up by an automobile tour of inspection of various types of roads and construction machinery, the county quarry and motor oilers and sanders.

UNUSUAL SUIT IS SETTLED FOR DEFENDANT

Toneray-Rudder Legal Controversy Which Has Created Much Interest Is Settled in Lewis County.

The Lewis County Leader says: A suit was tried in the Lewis Circuit Court last week in which W. H. Toneray, administrator of S. L. Lyons, deceased, was plaintiff, and Charles Rudder, of Ribolt, was defendant; and although the case was hotly contested, the jury returned a unanimous verdict fully vindicating the position taken by the defendant.

The suit grew out of a transaction made by defendant with Mr. S. L. Lyons, the day preceding his sudden death on the night of August 25th, 1919. There is a well established rule of law which prevents a party from testifying against a decedent, and this placed Mr. Rudder at a disadvantage in presenting his side of the controversy, but there is an exception to the rule of law, when anyone interested in the estate of the decedent testifies with reference to the transaction, then the other party to the controversy has the right to testify as to such facts as may be thus offered.

After hearing all the evidence in the case, the jury seemed to have no difficulty in arriving at a verdict in favor of Mr. Rudder.

Williamsburg, Ky., June 8. — Floyd Ellis shot and killed a Miss Bennett at Rockhold Monday night, according to reports received by the authorities here, and in turn was shot by the murdered girl's sister, and it is reported this morning he will die. Ellis had been going with the Bennett girl for some time, and when she is said to have refused to marry him he shot her. Her sister then took the pistol from him and shot him.

One Who Shows No Favor.

A merciless judge is Father Time. Before him the weak and the waiting go to the wall. Only the truth can stand. For years the following statement from a Maysville resident has withstood the sternest of all tests. Mrs. M. Holliday, 221 East Second street, Maysville, says: "I have been greatly benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills and I have reason to recommend them. At times my back has become lame and ached just over my kidneys. My kidneys were irregular in action and I was dizzy. When ever I have used Doan's Kidney Pills I always get relief from these complaints. I certainly think them a good reliable remedy. I always get Doan's at Wood & Son's Drug Store."

The above statement was given November 16, 1916, and on November 22, 1920, Mrs. Holliday said: "I am glad to say my kidneys have given me no trouble since using Doan's Kidney Pills four years ago. My general health has been good. I gladly renew the statement I gave recommending Doan's at that time."

BECAUSE

Our Forefathers fought against Monopoly of Office, Kings, and Aristocracy. They gave the world the greatest government under the canopy of heaven. A government of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. A country where men of merit, though in the ranks of the poor, could rise to the highest position. Eighteen consecutive years is a special privilege, a monopoly of office and condemned by the Men who Made the Nation.
